SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

IN RE SUBPOENA OF QUALCOMM INCORPORATED

TOT POWER CONTROL, S.L.,
Plaintiff,
v.
SAMSUNG ELECTRONICS CO., LTD
and SAMSUNG ELECTRONICS
AMERICA, INC.,
Defendants

Case No.: 3:24-cv-00627-H-VET

ORDER ON MOTION TO COMPEL THIRD-PARTY SUBPOENA AND MOTIONS TO SEAL;

ORDER TRANSFERRING MOTION TO COMPEL;

Doc. Nos. 1, 2, 23

Before the Court is TOT Power Control, S.L.’s (“TOT”) Motion to Compel Rule 30(b)(6) Testimony and Document Production from Third-Party Qualcomm, Inc. (“Qualcomm”). Doc. No. 1 (“Motion to Compel”). Accompanying TOT’s Motion to Compel and related Reply are Motions to File Documents Under Seal (collectively “Motions to Seal”). See Doc. Nos. 2, 23.

For the reasons set forth below, the Court ORDERS the Clerk of the Court to transfer the Motion to Compel and associated briefing to the docket in TOT Power Control, S.L. v. Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd. et al, Case No. 21-cv-1305-MN, in the District of Delaware pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45(f). Based on a review of the

1 Motions to Seal and the record, the Court GRANTS IN PART and DENIES IN PART
 2 the Motions to Seal.

3 I. FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

4 A. TOT's Motion to Compel

5 The Motion to Compel arises from a patent infringement action between TOT and 6 Defendants Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd. and Samsung Electronics America, Inc.
 7 (collectively, "Samsung") pending in the District of Delaware. Doc. No. 1 at 1. TOT alleges
 8 that Samsung infringed two of TOT's patents, U.S. Patent No. 7,532,865 and U.S. Patent
 9 No. 7,496,376. Id. at 2. TOT further alleges that Samsung employed the patented
 10 technologies, which provide certain functionality in wireless devices, through wireless
 11 baseband chips provided by Qualcomm. Id. In related cases against Apple, Inc. ("Apple")
 12 and LG Electronics, Inc. and LG Electronics U.S.A., Inc. (collectively "LG"), TOT makes 13 similar allegations, namely that Apple and LG infringed TOT's two patents by using 14 Qualcomm's wireless baseband chips. See Doc. No. 19 at 11. The related actions against 15 Apple (No. 21-cv-1302-MN) and LG (No. 21-cv-1304-MN) are also pending in the District
 16 of Delaware. The patent infringement actions against Samsung, Apple, and LG are 17 hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Underlying Litigation."

18 TOT represents that Qualcomm has sole possession of certain source code and 19 technical documents required in the Underlying Litigation. Doc. No. 1 at 6. Pursuant to 20 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45,¹ the District of Delaware issued subpoenas to 21 Qualcomm to (i) produce 27 categories of documents and (ii) testify on 10 topics.² See 22 Doc. No. 1-2, Decl. of Richard Lin ("Lin Decl.") at ¶¶ 2–3; Doc. No. 1-3 at Ex. A; Doc.
 23 No. 1-4 at Ex. B. TOT served Qualcomm with amended Rule 45 subpoenas on May 19,

25 ¹ Unless otherwise indicated, all references to a "Rule" are to the Federal Rules of Civil 26 Procedure.

27 ² Qualcomm served similar subpoenas on Apple and LG, which are the subject of 28 separate motions to compel pending before this Court. See No. 24-cv-00622-H-VET;
 No. 24-cv-00625-H-VET.

1 2023 and March 1, 2024, respectively.³ Lin Decl. at ¶¶ 2–3. In response, and as part of the 2 Underlying Litigation, Qualcomm produced confidential source code and almost 50,0000 3 pages of confidential non-source code documents relating to the chips and technology at 4 issue. Doc. No. 19 at 11. No deposition of Qualcomm occurred. Doc. No. 19 at 7.

5 Fact discovery in the Underlying Litigation closed on April 1, 2024. Doc. No. 1 at 6 3, 7. The next day, on April 2, 2024, TOT filed the present Motion to Compel.⁴ Doc. No.
 7 1. Therein, TOT asks that the Court compel Qualcomm to sit for a limited Rule 30(b)(6)
 8 deposition “to authenticate and establish the business record status” of certain documents
 9 and source code produced by Qualcomm. Id. at 4. Among the documents that TOT seeks 10 to authenticate is an affidavit prepared by Qualcomm for a separate patent infringement
 11 case litigated in Spain against Xiaomi (the “Xiaomi Affidavit”). Doc. No. 22 at 8–10. To 12 the extent Qualcomm has not already done so, TOT further requests that the Court compel 13 Qualcomm to produce a document referenced in a March 29, 2024 document production.
 14 Doc. No. 1 at 9–10. Lastly, TOT requests that the Court transfer the Motion to Compel to 15 the District of Delaware. Doc. No. 1 at 12.

16 On April 11, 2024, the Court ordered briefing on the Motion to Compel. Doc. No.
 17 8. At the parties’ request, the Court extended the briefing schedule twice. Doc. Nos. 10,
 18 11, 13, 14. The first extension was to accommodate the parties’ ongoing discovery
 19 discussions. Doc. No. 10. The second extension was to accommodate a discovery hearing
 20 on May 15, 2024 in the Underlying Litigation to consider, inter alia, whether Samsung,
 21

 23 ³ The parties provide conflicting service dates for the subpoenas. Compare Doc. No. 1 at 24 5–6 with Doc. No. 19 at 11–12. However, conflicts in the dates of service do not impact the Court’s analysis.

25 ⁴ Although signed on April 1, 2024, the Motion to Compel was filed on April 2, 2024.
 26 See CivLR 5.4(b) (“Electronic transmission of a document to the Electronic Filing
 27 System in the manner prescribed by the Court’s Administrative Policies and Procedures 28 Manual, together with the transmission of an NEF from the Court, constitutes filing of the document for all purposes of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Local Rules of this court . . .”).

1 Apple, and LG could depose Qualcomm on subjects beyond those at issue here. Doc. No.
2 13-1 at 2.

3 On May 17, 2024, all three defendants participated in this broader deposition of 4 Qualcomm. Doc. No. 22 at 4. At the May 17 deposition, TOT did not obtain the testimony
5 it presently asks the Court to compel. Id. However, Qualcomm separately provided a
6 declaration authenticating all its records, except it maintained that the Xiaomi Affidavit
7 was authentic but not an admissible business record. Doc. No. 19 at 8.

8 Qualcomm opposes the Motion to Compel, including TOT's request to transfer. Doc.
9 No. 19. Qualcomm argues that the Rule 30(b)(6) deposition, as requested in the Motion to 10 Compel, is outside the scope of the Rule 45 subpoena. Id. It also maintains that it has no 11 obligation to establish that the Xiaomi Affidavit is a business record. Importantly,
12 Qualcomm produced the single document that is at issue in the Motion to Compel. Doc.
13 No. 19 at 14–15.

14 B. TOT's Motions to Seal

15 In the Motion to Seal accompanying the Motion to Compel, TOT requests to file
16 Exhibits A, B, and C under seal (“First Motion to Seal”). Doc. No. 2. In the Motion to Seal
17 accompanying its Reply, TOT seeks to file sections of the Reply, including Exhibits 1 and 18 3 attached thereto, under seal (“Second Motion to Seal”). Doc. No. 23. TOT lodged with 19 the Court unredacted copies of the subject documents and Reply (collectively the “Subject
20 Information”). Doc. Nos. 3, 24. Qualcomm purportedly designated the Subject Information
21 as confidential pursuant to a protective order and, for this reason, TOT moves to seal the 22 Subject Information. Doc. Nos. 2, 23.

23 The Court held a hearing on December 9, 2024 to ascertain why the Subject
24 Information is confidential and/or should be protected from disclosure. Doc. No. 32. Prior 25 to the hearing, Qualcomm filed a detailed Joinder to the Motions to Seal, including a 26 declaration from counsel, explaining why the Subject Information is confidential. Doc. No.
27 27. Although TOT is the moving party, at the time of hearing, TOT argued that the Subject 28

1 Information is not confidential or sensitive and therefore should not be sealed. In turn,
 2 Qualcomm argued that portions, but not all, of the Subject Information should be sealed.

3 II. LEGAL STANDARD

4 A. Transfer Under Rule 45

5 Rule 45(f) allows a court to transfer a subpoena-related motion to the subpoena-
 6 issuing court in “exceptional circumstances.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(f) (“[W]hen the court
 7 where compliance is required did not issue the subpoena, it may transfer a motion [] to the 8 issuing court if the person subject to the subpoena consents or if the court finds exceptional
 9 circumstances.”). Although Rule 45(f) does not define “exceptional circumstances,” the 10 2013 Advisory Committee Notes provide that:

11 The prime concern should be avoiding burdens on local nonparties subject to 12 subpoenas, and it should not be assumed that the issuing court is in a superior
 13 position to resolve subpoena-related motions. In some circumstances, 14 however, transfer may be warranted in order to avoid disrupting the issuing 15 court’s management of the underlying litigation, as when that court has 16 already ruled on issues presented by the motion or the same issues are likely 17 to arise in discovery in many districts. Transfer is appropriate only if such 18 interests outweigh the interests of the nonparty served with the subpoena in 19 obtaining local resolution of the motion.

20 Fed. R. Civ. P. 45, advisory committee notes on 2013 amendments; see also Moon
21 Mountain Farms, LLC v. Rural Cnty. Ins. Co., 301 F.R.D. 426, 429–30 (N.D. Cal. 2014)
 22 (collecting cases and noting that attempting to circumvent the authority of the presiding 23 judge in the underlying action is an exceptional circumstance contemplated by Rule 45).
 24 The party seeking transfer bears the burden of demonstrating that exceptional 25 circumstances exist. Fed. R. Civ. P. 45, advisory committee notes on 2013 amendments.
 26 In determining whether to transfer under Rule 45(f), a court may consider the following 27 factors related to the underlying litigation: complexity, procedural posture, duration of 28 pendency, and nature of the issues pending before, or already resolved by, the issuing court in the underlying litigation. E4 Strategic Solutions, Inc. v. Pebble Ltd. P’ship, SA MC 15-00022-DOC, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 191686, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 23, 2015).

1 B. Sealing of Documents

2 “[T]he courts of this country recognize a general right to inspect and copy public
 3 records and documents, including judicial records and documents.” Nixon v. Warner
 4 Commc'ns, Inc., 435 U.S. 589 (1978). “Unless a particular court record is one ‘traditionally 5 kept secret,’ a ‘strong presumption in favor of access’ is the starting point.” Kamakana v.
 6 City & Cnty. of Honolulu, 447 F.3d 1172, 1178 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting Foltz v. State Farm
 7 Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 331 F.3d 1122, 1135 (9th Cir. 2003)). “The presumption of access is 8 ‘based on the need for federal courts, although independent—indeed, particularly because 9 they are independent—to have a measure of accountability and for the public to have 10 confidence in the administration of justice.’” Ctr. for Auto Safety v. Chrysler Grp., LLC, 11 809 F.3d 1092, 1096 (9th Cir. 2016) (quoting United States v. Amodeo, 71 F.3d 1044, 1048 12 (2d Cir. 1995)). A party seeking to seal a judicial record bears the burden of overcoming 13 this strong presumption of access. Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1135.

14 To overcome the presumption of access, the party must demonstrate either “good 15 cause” or “compelling reasons” to seal a record, depending on the motion to which the 16 record relates. Ctr. for Auto Safety, 809 F.3d at 1096–97. If the underlying motion is more 17 than tangentially related to the merits, the “compelling reasons” standard applies. Id. at 18 1096–98. When the underlying motion does not surpass this threshold, the “good cause” 19 standard applies. Id. Further, “[e]ven if it may be appropriate to seal a document in its 20 entirety, a party should still redact records whenever possible.” Craig v. Am. Tuna, Inc., 21 No. 22-cv-00473, 2023 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 211558, at *10 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 28, 2023).

22 “In general, ‘compelling reasons’ sufficient to outweigh the public’s interest in 23 disclosure and justify sealing court records exist when such ‘court files might have become 24 a vehicle for improper purposes,’ such as the use of records to gratify private spite, promote 25 public scandal, circulate libelous statements, or release trade secrets.” Kamakana 447 F.3d
 26 at 1179 (quoting Nixon, 435 U.S. at 598). Alternatively, “[t]he mere fact that the production 27 of records may lead to a litigant’s embarrassment, incrimination, or exposure to further 28 litigation will not, without more, compel the court to seal its records.” Id. In turn, the lower

1 “good cause” standard requires a “particularized showing” that “specific prejudice or harm
 2 will result” if the information is disclosed. Phillips ex rel. Estates of Byrd v. Gen. Motors
 3 Corp., 307 F.3d 1206, 1210–11 (9th Cir. 2002); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c). In the 4 context of sealed materials attached to a discovery motion unrelated to the merits of a case,
 5 “a party need only satisfy the less exacting ‘good cause’ standard.” Ctr. for Auto Safety,
 6 809 F.3d at 1097; see also Seattle Times Co. v. Rhinehart, 467 U.S. 20, 33 (1983) (“Much
 7 of the information that surfaces during pretrial discovery may be unrelated, or only 8 tangentially related, to the underlying cause of action. Therefore, restraints placed on 9 discovered, but not yet admitted, information are not a restriction on a traditionally public 10 source of information.”).

11 III. DISCUSSION

12 A. Motion to Compel

13 The Court finds that exceptional circumstances exist that warrant transferring the 14 Motion to Compel to the District of Delaware.

15 First, there is substantial risk that any ruling on the Motion to Compel will disrupt 16 the issuing court’s management of the Underlying Litigation, comprised of not one, but 17 three separate actions raising complex patent infringement claims. In fact, the underlying 18 court expressed this exact concern at the discovery hearing on May 15, 2024. At that time,
 19 the Delaware District Court instructed TOT and Qualcomm to raise future discovery
 20 disputes in Delaware, and to do so by providing an outline of the specific discovery sought 21 together with a timeline that “fits and won’t derail the remainder of the case scheduling 22 order” in the Underlying Litigation. Doc. No. 22-5 at 5. Critically, fact discovery in the 23 Underlying Litigation closed prior to TOT filing the Motion to Compel, and there is no
 24 representation that any party sought to reopen discovery to accommodate the discovery
 25 sought in the Motion to Compel. With discovery closed, a ruling on the Motion to Compel
 26 risks disrupting the Delaware District Court’s management of the Underlying Litigation
 27 moving forward. See In re Alliance Healthcare Partners, LLC, 2022 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
 28 196660, at *12 (D. Ariz. Oct. 28, 2022) (concluding that “ruling on the motion to compel

1 could disrupt the issuing court’s case management” where the deadline for fact discovery
 2 was less than a month away) (quoting Mirza v. Yelp, Inc., 2021 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 130455,
 3 *7 (N.D. Cal. 2021)); 3B Med., Inc. v. Resmed Corp., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 163037, *10–
 4 11 (S.D. Cal. 2016) (the fact that discovery was set to close in less than a month supported
 5 transfer); In re Subpoena to Kia Motors Am., Inc., 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 72827, *2 (C.D.
 6 Cal. 2014) (concerns about the discovery deadline supported transfer to “the court with 7 control over the discovery cut-off deadline”).

8 Second, an order on the Motion to Compel may contravene the Delaware District
 9 Court’s orders and/or instructions. The Underlying Litigation has been pending in 10 Delaware for over three years. See TOT Power Control, S.L. v. Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd. et al, Case No. 21-cv-1305-MN, Doc. No. 1. And the docket reflects numerous 11 discovery orders, conferences, and hearings that have occurred over the course of those 12 three years. Thus, the Delaware District Court is not only more familiar with this case but 13 also previously decided discovery motions and instructed the parties on how to bring future
 14 discovery disputes to its attention. Indeed, it is unclear to this Court whether the underlying 15 court was aware of the instant discovery dispute when it provided those instructions. Doc.
 16 No. 22-5 at 5. Moreover, the underlying court has already dealt with issues pertaining to 17 deposing Qualcomm when it permitted a broader deposition of Qualcomm on May 17, 18 2024. See Doc. No. 22 at 4. And it appears that disputes surrounding discovery from 19 Qualcomm are likely to continue and, as such, should be addressed by the Delaware
 20 District Court to ensure consistency. See, e.g., Id. at 2–3 (identifying potential dispute 21 regarding Qualcomm documents in the action against Apple, No. 21-cv-1302-MN).

22 Under these circumstances, a ruling on the Motion to Compel creates a substantial 23 risk of not only contravening prior orders by the Delaware District Court, but also 24 interfering with its management of the Underlying Litigation, particularly as discovery
 25 issues continue to arise vis-à-vis Qualcomm. The Court therefore finds that exceptional 26 circumstances exist to transfer the Motion to Compel to the District of Delaware.
 27

1 Lastly, the circumstances that warrant transfer outweigh Qualcomm’s interests in 2 obtaining local resolution. Transfer to the District of Delaware imposes some burden on 3 Qualcomm, but it is not significant. First, Rule 45(f) permits Qualcomm’s counsel in this 4 action to appear in the District of Delaware for purposes of the Motion to Compel. See Fed.
 5 R. Civ. P. 45(f) (“[I]f the attorney for a person subject to a subpoena is authorized to 6 practice in the court where the motion was made, the attorney may file papers and appear
 7 on the motion as an officer of the issuing court.”). Second, the parties may request
 8 videoconferencing for any potential hearings or the deposition itself, mitigating the burdens
 9 on Qualcomm. Indeed, as reflected in the Advisory Committee Notes to Rule 45, “judges
 10 are encouraged to permit telecommunications methods to minimize the burden a transfer 11 imposes on nonparties.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 45, advisory committee notes on 2013
 12 amendments; Moon Mountain Farms, LLC, 301 F.R.D. at 430 (same). Moreover, TOT
 13 represents that Magistrate Judge Fallon, who typically resolves discovery disputes in the 14 Underlying Litigation, frequently holds remote hearings. Doc. No. 22 at 8. The Court also 15 notes that Qualcomm has already been litigating other discovery issues in the District of 16 Delaware as part of the Underlying Litigation. Id. at 3–4. Accordingly, the Court finds that 17 it is not meaningfully more burdensome for Qualcomm to litigate the Motion to Compel in 18 Delaware as compared to litigating the issue locally.

19 B. Motions to Seal

20 As an initial matter, the Court finds that the Motion to Compel is a discovery motion
 21 that is only tangentially related to the merits. As such, the Court applies the “good cause”
 22 standard. See Labbe’ v. Dometic Corp., No. 2:20-cv-01975-DAD-DMC, 2023 U.S. Dist.
 23 LEXIS 179982, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2023) (compiling cases holding that the good cause 24 standard applies to discovery motions); see also, e.g., WhatsApp Inc. v. NSO Grp. Techs.
Ltd., 491 F. Supp. 3d 584, 596 (N.D. Cal. 2020) (“[P]laintiffs’ motion to compel discovery 26 is only tangentially related to the merits and the good cause standard applies.”); Jasso v.
Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., No. 2:20-cv-00858-CDS-BNW, 2023 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 104928,

1 at *3 (D. Nev. June 15, 2023) (applying “the good cause standard in evaluating whether to 2 seal documents attached to” plaintiffs’ motion to compel).

3 Given TOT’s current position that none of the Subject Information should be sealed,
4 the Court looks to Qualcomm to support the request to seal. Qualcomm requests sealing
5 only the following information:

- 6 • In Exhibits A and B to the Motion to Compel: the right-hand column of 7 Attachment B, titled “Software Build ID” (see Doc. No. 3 at 17–21, 30–34 and 8 Doc. No. 3-1 at 7–11);
- 9 • In Exhibit B to the Motion to Compel: Topic No. 11 in the List of Deposition
10 Topics (see Doc. No. 3-1 at 5);
- 11 • Exhibit C to the Motion to Compel (see Doc. No. 3-2 at 2–6);
- 12 • Page 5, lines 1–13 in Reply (see Doc. No. 24 at 5)
- 13 • Exhibit 1 to Reply (see Doc. No. 24-1 at 2–3); and
- 14 • Exhibit 3 to Reply (see Doc. No. 24-2 at 2–6).

15 Based on Qualcomm’s Joinder and supporting declaration, and the arguments
16 advanced at the time of hearing, the Court finds that good cause exists to seal the above-
17 listed information. The information relates to Qualcomm’s confidential and sensitive
18 business information. Although TOT suggests the information is dated and therefore no
19 longer sensitive, Qualcomm represents that it continues to maintain the information
20 confidential in the ordinary course of its business. Moreover, despite TOT’s assertions that 21 the information is publicly available, TOT could not identify specific examples of this 22 information being publicly disclosed.

23 Because no party advances any argument to seal anything beyond the above-listed
24 information, no good cause exists to seal more than the above-listed information.
25 Accordingly, the Court GRANTS IN PART and DENIES IN PART the Motions to Seal.

1 IV. CONCLUSION

2 Based on the foregoing, the following information shall be filed under seal:

10

11

- In Exhibits A and B to the Motion to Compel: the right-hand column of Attachment B, titled “Software Build ID” (see Doc. No. 3 at 17–21, 30–34 and Doc. No. 3-1 at 7–11);
- In Exhibit B to the Motion to Compel: Topic No. 11 in the List of Deposition Topics (see Doc. No. 3-1 at 5);
- Exhibit C to the Motion to Compel (see Doc. No. 3-2 at 2–6);
- Page 5, lines 1–13 in Reply (see Doc. No. 24 at 5)
- Exhibit 1 to Reply (see Doc. No. 24-1 at 2–3); and
- Exhibit 3 to Reply (see Doc. No. 24-2 at 2–6).

12 The Motions to Seal are accordingly GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN 13 PART. To ensure only the above-listed information is sealed, by no later than January 9,
14 2025, Defendant shall update and re-file Docket Nos. 3 and 24 in accordance with this 15 Order. Defendant should use the event “sealed lodged proposed document” when refileing 16 the documents.

17 Following the filing of the documents under seal, the Court ORDERS the Clerk of 18 the Court to transfer the Motion to Compel and all associated briefing to the docket in TOT
19 Power Control, S.L. v. Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd. et al, Case No. 21-cv-1305-MN, in 20 the District of Delaware pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45(f). Following 21 transfer, the Clerk shall close this case.
